

Multiple sclerosis (MS)

Raising Awareness Of MS Caregiver Needs

Multiple Sclerosis, or MS, is a chronic, debilitating disease of the central nervous system that can significantly impact the lives of people living with the condition, as well as families and loved ones.^{1,2} Due to the unpredictable nature of the disease, MS caregivers (also called “support partners” or “care partners”) can face many challenges while navigating the often-changing care needs for their loved one.³

To help improve caregiver support, the STEP Program™ provided a total of USD 150 000 to two organizations for their proposals that demonstrate innovation in emotional support, physical care, and everyday assistance needs.

Funded programs include:

Accelerated Cure Project’s iConquerMS Caregiver Connection™ - Provides emotional support, everyday assistance, and other community-building resources to MS caregivers through easy access to dedicated MS caregiver resources, a peer-to-peer discussion forum, and social media platforms.

Can Do MS’s Communication Guide for Support Partners and People Living with MS -Includes multimedia and individualized toolkits that will provide resources and tips to help manage challenges of MS caregiving.
